A BAD TOOTHACHE.

My friend, Mr. Edward Hobday, is one of the people who disparage whatever is not their own. If one of his acquaintances has a possession -a horse, a boat, a garden, a pie, an umbrella, which is an object of pride to the owner-Hobday usually renembers having owned or at least seen or heard of a far more remarkable object of the same kind. So when he found me one evening with a severe toothache I was not surprised to hear him say:

"Hm! Toothache! If you'd ever suffered from one as I have, you'd know. I ventured to defend my own as a remarkable specimen of its kind, for few things are more exasperating than to have one's toothache depreciated. But Mr. Hobday told me the following story, which I know to be true in the main and I was obliged will kind o' keep up the idea that you appeared to steel Not as he to admit that I had never possessed so disastrous an ache. He said:

The toothache took me when I was on the Pacific coast in one of those new cities where nothing was done except the great work of "booming the town." The population lived in tents and rough shanties, and dentists and such luxuries were as scarce as kings and dodos.

It was about half past 9 in the evening, when the pain became almost unbearable-none of your mild comfortable aches that are merely an excuse for idleness and a bid for human sympathy. I left my quar-ters and went down by the water front to walk in the cool of the even

To my surprise and delight I saw near the wharf a tent with the illu minated sign "Dentist" in front. The tooth had transported me beyond any fear of dentistry by this time, and I entered the dread presence with the joy that a captive feels when he sees the approach of the ex-ecutioner who is to end a long peri-

"Potlatch" is the Chinook word for "present" or "treat." The Siwash, or coast Indian, holds on state occasions a feast, to which each member of the tribe or tribes who celebrate it contributes. They amass all the dibles they can get in an open place on the shore and then eat the pilean operation which often keeps them busy for several days or a week. This is called a "potlatch

I found them hospitable and friendly. At another time I could hardly have done justice to such immense good cheer, but my late experience had qualified me to eat nobly on through bear, venison, duck, grouse, trout, salmon, sugar, bread, potatoes or whatever lay at hand. In two days I had made up for all

"So he clasps Davison down in the hold and sends some o' the boys him yet." Mr. Hobday's story was a true one. The "Shanchai" trade has languished, for men in search of work are no longer scarce on the coast, but the "potlatch" will exist as long as there is a Siwash on earth who can obtain a week's provisions.—Francis Dana in Youth's Companion.

short time ago. It is, however, not strictly a ministers' movement, and those who have the affair in charge claim that it is not a political move, which seems to be borne out by the fact that at a meeting held at the inception of the movement, about two weeks ago, when a committee of four was appointed. It consisted of one Democrat, one Republican and one Prohibitionist.

One of the prime movers in the matter, when interviewed by a representative of the Times-Democrat eference to the movement, said There is not much to be said in reference to the microment at present because it is in its infancy. I am not as greatly interested in the mat ter as some of the citizens because, am a minister and have the duties in connection with my pastorate to de-rote myself wholly to before I do out dde work. The movement is not minister's one and is not a political

one. The object is to form a thorough organization for the purpose of lifting the city upward morally by demanding compelling the enforcement of laws and local ordinances by the municipal authorities. The city must be rid of houses of Ill fame, gambling dens, etc., and to that end the organization will stand by and co-operate with the authorities and insist that they enforce the laws.

"There are now sufficient laws which, if enforced, would emprove wonderful extent.

"The purpose of the organization is to have these laws enforced and to support and elect such men as will not cater to the saloon and gambling element." Last Friday night a meeting was in held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms at t wards perfecting a permanent or-ganization.
